Synopsis of the President's Patriotic Remarks-Greeted by Great Numbers of Children.

Оттимwa, October 9.—The Presidential E. J. Davins, greeted the party here.

After a forenoon visit to the Coal Palace, President Harrison repaired to the residence of his sister, where lunch was taken. The rain by this time had Governor Boies formally welomed President Harrison to Iowa. The latter responded, receiving considerable applause as he did so.

The President said that if he should attempt to interpret the lesson of the coal palace he would say it was an illustration of how much of what is artistic and graceful to be found in the common things of life. "And if I should," said he, "make an application the lesson, it would be to suggest that we might profitably carry into all our Somes and all neighborly intercourse some transportation of this spirit. Common things of this life, touched by a loving spirit, may be made to glow and glisten. The common intercourse of life, touched by friendliness and love, may be made to fill every home and neighborhood with brightness that wels cannot shed, and it is pleasant to think that in our American home life we have reached this ideal in a degree unexcelled elsewhere. I believe that American homes, whether in city or on farm, the American father and mother n their relations to children are kinder, more hopeful and more benignant than is any other land. During the afternoon a large crowd gathered around the train, and the President was again compelled to show imself and to speak a few words. He said that such spontaneous greetings as these gave him courage in work that often was very wearisome and often very full of worry. They helped him to believe that the great masses of the people have no other interest than that Government shall be well administered and that the public offices be filled by competent, conscientious and

A public reception was tendered the President at the Coal Palace, and from 8 to 9 o'clock he shook hands with thousands of people.

A LEADING QUESTION. OTTUMWA, October 9.-When an Associated Press representative informed President Harrison of the report current in the East that he contemplates a *pecial session of Congress to consider the federal election bill, the President said he was sorry he could give no expression on the subject, as it would be Secretary Halford insists that no such decision has been arrived at. Whether the subject is under consideration or not he would not say.

ONCE MORE ON THE ROAD.

CHARLTON, Iowa, October 9 .- At 9 o'clock tonight the Presidential party left Ottumwa for St. Joseph, Mo., which will be reached about 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. Atchison will be reached about 8 o'clock tomorrow morning, and Popeka at 9:30. At the latter city the Presidential party will be entertained until 5 o'clock p. m.
